

Internship:

Right Livelihood Award Foundation

The Right Livelihood Award Foundation annually awards what has often been called the “Alternative Nobel Prize”. Presented for the first time in 1980, the prize is delivered every year to four outstanding individuals or organisations in the fields of peace, human rights, and the environment. The Stockholm-based office of the foundation has three staff members.

Research

The intern will concentrate on work around nominations for the 2011 Award and research about candidates and potential candidates. You will have your own desk, computer and telephone.

Period of internship: 1 January–30 June 2011 (exact period can be discussed).

Main tasks:

- Answer and archive incoming nominations;
- conduct research about candidates and potential candidates for the award;
- conduct background research about certain topics that are interesting for the award and help us identify potential nominators and nominees in these fields;
- write nominations for other awards;
- assisting with information and press work; and
- general office support.

Qualifications:

- University studies (ongoing or finished); and
- knowledge about social, environmental, human rights and/or development questions.

Languages: Excellent oral and written English. German and Swedish is an advantage. Other languages such as French or Spanish would also be beneficial.

This is a non-paid internship though the Foundation will pay your travel to and from Stockholm at the beginning and end of your internship, as well as 2500 SEK/month towards your accommodation if you are not already living within commuting distance to our office.

If you are interested in the position, but would like to have some more information before applying, you are welcome to contact our present intern, Wiebke Gardewin (telephone: +46-8-7020339, or assistant@rightlivelihood.org). Please send your application (containing a letter of intention and a CV with references) by e-mail to our Foundation Manager, Kajsa Övergaard: kajsa@rightlivelihood.org. Your complete application must reach our office latest 8 October 2010.
